B. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions.

Thomas Edison had more inventions than any other American. When he died in 1931, Americans thought they could best show their respect for him.

One suggestion was that the whole country turn off all lights for a minute or two. All electric power would be shut off in houses, streets, and factories. Perhaps this suggested plan made Americans understand fully what Edison and his inventions meant to them. Electric power was too important to the country. Shutting it off, for even a short time, would have led to complete disorganization. So this was impossible.

Many people decided to silently lower their lights. In this way, they respected the man who had done more than anyone else to put the great force of electricity in his countrymen's hands.
